

Your Dream Condo at P8,500 A Month Made Possible by Hi-Integra Homes

The common stigma of owning your home is a financially daunting task has made renting the quickest solution for most Filipinos. With the spike of demand in residential sector, the main driving forces for this market are the OFW remittances, IT-BPO industry, domestic demand and tourism. However, this market sector is also moving towards lower income household.

Working & Living in Philippines

A lot of Filipinos are finding that living near their workplace is better versus commuting, yet the locations of their preferred address and its features to offer prove to be far from their allocated budget. Several emerging business districts are expected to rise in Makati, Bonifacio Global City in Taguig, Manila and Quezon City. [1] These cities are expected to grow in the next 5 years, with Quezon City being the next central business district due to its largest size among all cities in Metro Manila. QC is where all government offices and broadcasting networks are located. It's also teeming with prominent educational institutions and public transportation options, making it a great choice for work and play.
