All people need to do is carve two minutes out of their day for a belly-flattening sequence to burn mega calories and pump up their major muscle groups.

Bruce Krahn's "Lean Belly Breakthrough" is a newly launched fitness course which teaches people how carrying extra pounds around the middle can be troubling even for individuals with an overall healthy weight.

This program teaches people that belly fat appears to be unhealthy because it is located in the liver where it makes inflammatory substances that contribute to heart disease and type II diabetes. The creator of this program explains in detail how waistline circumference is a great indicator of cardiovascular disease, type II diabetes, high cholesterol, high blood pressure and breast cancer.

However, the reasons for the heightened perils of fat as opposed to subcutaneous fat are not entirely clear but it is known that this type of fat produces chemicals and other substances which affect insulin sensitivity and the risk of cardiovascular diseases.

This fitness program helps flatten the belly in the shortest possible time period by triggering specific group of muscles. According to Bruce, in order for people to shed off unwanted belly fat, they need to diet and exercise. As when people take a load off their stubborn body weight, they lose both fat and some muscle mass along with water.

Since muscle burns more calories, people want to maintain as much of it as possible and even add to it which is why it is important for them to incorporate both diet and exercise in weight loss attempt. Bruce teaches people how belly fat responds better to exercise than does the subcutaneous fat. The program comes with two-minute sequences which can give people a day-long metabolism boost.

This is due to the fact that people consume more oxygen during 2 minute sequences than in super-slow weight training. This in itself can increase post-exercise metabolism, meaning that people continue to burn calories long after exercising. In addition, all people need to do is carve two minutes out of their day for this quick, belly flattening sequence.

The creator claims that this energy-boosting sequence is just what people need to burn mega calories and pump up their major muscle groups. Additionally, this sequence results in greater fat loss than super-slow strength training sessions, meaning people get a whole lot more bang for their buck when they sweat it out in this 2 minute session rather than spending twice as much time on a treadmill. Further, Lean Belly Breakthrough is available at a price of $37.00 and is sold through the Clickbank digital marketplace.
