

Anonymous by default

With regards to recent revelations about how data from Facebook has been used by Cambridge Analytica to influence elections all around the world we would like to point out how we care about your privacy on our site.

First of all, you don't have to create account to publish something on JustPaste.it. We don't have to have your name, e-mail and home address to publish your article.

Secondly, this year we've removed entirely any advertising and social media scripts from the site. That way you can be sure, that yours and your readers data are not collected by any advertising agency or social media platform. Only our know about what you read on JustPaste.it, and this data won't be used to influence political and purchasing choices.

If you would like to support us in these effort, please consider using Premium Account.