

ESCAPE

I'm part of a nascent community that is trying to gather people of like-mind.

This group works to help provide an escape from whatever we find vexing or subjugating about daily life and centers around a common appreciation for the sciences. The heart of our community revolves around our shared interests in retro tech, cyberpunk, and utopian progressivism in the vein of Star Trek with just a dash of the licentious.

Here, in our little electronic escape, anonymity creates a sort of second identity and everything about your physical form is stripped away and you are reduced to text. We can escape from the serfdom of sociological norms and be whatever we want to be and choose what people know and do not know about us on a whim in a purely artificial existence. Ideas can flow anonymously and the ethos generating them can be rendered inconsequential. It is our hope that in time, a generous well of information would be born and people could work together on projects and discussion.

If any part of what I have said here has piqued your interest, then I suggest you check out our Text Only Discord channel: <https://discord.gg/QpcX8RM>

If you are to participate, it is suggested that you create a second identity for yourself, so as not to interfere with your real Life.

Please do not hesitate to contact me with any questions or concerns.