

Setting a Path to Freedom and Education on this International Day of Women and Girls in Science

The United Nations recognizes the significance of promoting gender equality and empowering women and girls as a crucial factor in not only economic growth, but also in achieving all the sustainable development goals by 2030. To address this issue, international days and weeks have been established to bring attention to important topics of discussion and spread awareness for society and nations to grow. One such event is the International Day of Women and Girls in Science, which focuses on highlighting the importance of women and girls in the development and growth of the nation. CFTI, a rural development NGO, supports girl education by providing access to quality education, resources and mentorship opportunities. By investing in girls, we can create a brighter future for everyone.

How CFTI is Supporting Girls' Education

CFTI is committed to supporting girls' education in India and has undertaken a significant step to address the challenges of low literacy rates in rural India. Their Bicycle Distribution Programme, also called the 'Savitrichya Leki Chalalya Pudhe' programme ensures accessibility to education for rural girls. Through this programme, CFTI distributes cycles to school and college girls to address the lack of proper transportation facilities in rural India. The organisation is dedicated to ensuring that every girl has access to quality education, and is committed to transforming rural India towards a developed & empowered tomorrow.

Below are a couple of success stories of the Bicycle Distribution Programme:

- Diksha's life changed with a bicycle

Diksha Managesh Magar is a young girl who grew up without parents, but was taken in by her loving aunt. However, her daily commute to school via a shared auto-rickshaw was a financial strain for her aunt and a hindrance to her studies and health. But with the gift of a bicycle, she now arrives at school in a timely manner, saves her aunt's money, and stays fit through physical exercise.

- Arati overcame her fear with a bicycle

Arati Gurunath Naik's journey to school was a treacherous one, as she had to traverse through a jungle in a remote tribal area called Khutalwadi. The long walk and fear of danger from animals and humans during monsoons and winter were taking a toll on her health and academics. But with the gift of a bicycle, she now has more time to spend with her family, study, and help her mother. The cycle has also helped her overcome her fears and shortened her journey to school.

- Ravika's ride to future

Ravika Rohidas Pawar's school was located 2 km away from her home, and she used to walk through a forest area to reach school, often arriving late. But with the gift of a bicycle, she now crosses the forest area with ease and reaches school in no time. Not only is cycling a great exercise, but it has also helped Ravika increase her height and arrive at school on time. The bicycle has added a new adventurous element to her daily journey to school.

Take a Bicycle Pledge!

The Centre for Transforming India (CFTI) is paying homage to Indian social reformer, educationalist and poetess, Savitribai Phule, through its bicycle distribution programme. The increasing drop-out rate of girl students in rural areas is due to various reasons such as

- An unsupportive lifestyle,
- Remote location of schools,

- Social stigma, and
- Gender inequality.

To help overcome these issues, one can donate to charity with CFTI by providing bicycles to girl students, allowing them to commute easily. So far, CFTI has successfully distributed 16,000+ bicycles to underprivileged girl students in various parts of rural Maharashtra. The mapping and research process carried out by the organisation's volunteers helps identify girl students in need of the bicycle. With the vision of distributing 1,00,000 cycles across India, CFTI aims to motivate girl students to continue their education and complete college. By providing this mode of transportation, CFTI is hoping to contribute to the well-being and safety of girl students in India.

Why support CFTI?

On the occasion of International Day of Women and Girls in Science, it's time to make a difference and support CFTI - a leading NGO for girl education. Your donation to this rural development NGO can bring about a positive change in the lives of women and girls in India. Your contribution will not only empower women but also aid in the overall development of rural communities. Be a part of the change by joining CFTI and help eradicate poverty through women empowerment and girl education. With your support, CFTI can write a new chapter of development and innovation for India. Don't miss this opportunity to donate to charity and make a lasting impact.

Ways to support CFTI

There are several ways in which individuals and companies can support the mission of this NGO for girl education and contribute towards women's empowerment. Here are some options for contributing to CFTI.

- Direct Donation: You can donate directly to this NGO for girl education by visiting their website and clicking on the "Donate Now" button. Any contribution of ₹500 or more is eligible for tax exemption under section 80G.
- Fundraiser: Organise a fundraiser to raise money for this NGO for girl education and help donate to charity.
- CSR Partnership: Companies have a social responsibility to donate to charity and contribute to charitable causes. CFTI provides an excellent opportunity for companies to fulfil their duty and contribute towards women's empowerment through their philanthropic efforts.

- Volunteer with the NGO: Join the team of 700 dedicated volunteers working hard to support the cause of this rural development NGO.

So, support this noble cause and fulfil your social responsibility by contributing to this NGO.

Author Profile:

Centre For Transforming India (CFTI) was established in 2009. It is a registered NGO under the Indian Trusts Act of 1882 and was founded by passionate young individuals to bring in change by elevating rural communities. With a team of over 700 volunteers, CFTI works for education, women empowerment, disaster relief, healthcare, etc. for the underprivileged. All contributions of ₹500 and above towards CFTI are applicable for exemption from income tax as per section 80G of the Income Tax Act.