

All about IVF Plan - The stages of IVF – Indira IVF

Embryos that are not transferred can then be cryopreserved. They can be used afterward during a thawing cycle. The data currently available demonstrates that pregnancy rates with cryopreserved embryos are equivalent to a fresh transfer. The law allows your embryos to be kept for 10 years.

In our unit and according to clearly established criteria, we have a single embryo transfer protocol to maximize your chances of pregnancy and minimize the risk of multiple pregnancies that are at risk. We will tell you about it during the whole process of your care. This is the 5th step of the IVF Plan.
