Driving Factors for the Qatar Electric Vehicle Market and an Analysis of Future Demand: Key Driver: Active Government Efforts toward Renewable Energy Production & Encouraging Green Mobility

In order to attain sustainable mobility goals by reducing carbon emissions as outlined in Qatar Vision 2030, the government is actively working on promoting the use of renewable & green energy and encouraging the adoption of EVs in the country. Consequently, it is generating lucrative prospects for foreign EV manufacturers to invest in the country. Moreover, financial institutions are offering green financing options to cater to the rising consumer demand for EVs & HEVs. Hence, the country is rapidly moving to transition to electric buses and car/taxi fleets while encouraging consumers toward EV options, which, subsequently, would drive the electric vehicle market in Qatar through 2028.

Numerous customers are also expressing interest in tailored products, including supplements, diet plans, & workout regimens. Backed by the continuous expansion of the nutraceuticals market due to the mounting need for & acceptance of nutritional supplements, it shall make a prominent intervention in predictive & proactive health during the forecast period.
