Educational toys are toys that are intended to enhance learning and are typically created for youngsters. They are created with an educational aim in mind, such as supporting a child in the development of a specific skill or teaching a child about a particular subject. Adult behaviors and items are simplified, miniaturized, or imitated.

An educational toy is supposed to teach you something. It is expected to educate, encourage intellectual, emotional, and physical growth. An educational toy should teach a youngster about a specific subject or aid in the development of a specific skill. Today, more toys than ever before are made with a child's education and growth in mind. Let's have a look at a few advantages of educational toys:
