What Are Hair Implants?

Hair Plugs/Hair Implants are something you don't want. These days hair implant procedures are called the FUE (Follicular Unit Extraction) method, which is basically hair plugs with a different name and a smaller diameter punch. Using smaller diameter punches that still leave round, usually <https://naturaltransplants.com> white, "plug" scars. Hair plugs are the result of punching out a round section of the scalp containing one or more hair follicles. In the early days of hair implants, they were literally plugs. Two punches were required - one from the donor area and the other where the hair plugs are to be replanted. Essentially, you are moving your balds spots to the back of your head and round scars do not create a Hair Transplant Scar natural hairline no matter how many hairs are in the graft.

Our High-Yield Unit Extraction method leaves a scar that's practically invisible when you cut your hair to just 1/2" in length. Plus our doctors can move up to 12,000 hairs in a single procedure. You'll want to check out Natural Hair Transplants Clinic, a hair restoration clinic that does not offer FUE hair restoration.
