Seeking Overseas Job Consultants In India And jobs in Nigeria for indians

In the borders of the Atlantic Ocean's Gulf of Guinea lies a prominent country and a valuable part of West Africa called Nigeria. Benin, Cameroon, and Chad are its neighbours. Nigeria, the largest economy in Africa with a $476 billion GDP each year, also has the highest fertility rates in the world. By 2020, each woman will give birth to 5.4 children on average.

Despite Nigeria's high poverty rate, many Nigerians make a respectable living in their chosen professions. However, due to the high salaries of some of these professions, entry into them can be pretty tricky. Because both nations have a rich history and have similar vocational needs, India enjoys good relations with Africa, and Nigeria is no exception. Education (course of study, certification, etc.), abilities, and experience all impact these high-paying employment.

Multinational corporations, public and private businesses, and businesses all have open positions. They pay their employees significant compensation and thrilling incentives and benefits. Let's find out about the highest-paying jobs in Nigeria, their payscales, and how to get them.

Jobs in Nigeria for Indians

Surgeon: N400,000 - N2,500,000 per month.
How to Become a Surgeon?
In any university recognised by the National Universities Commission, you must study medicine and surgery to become a surgeon in Nigeria. Six years is the typical length of education at the university, plus one year for National Youth Service and horsemanship. It would be best if you did well on your senior secondary school certificate examination and other pertinent exams because studying medicine and surgery is a very competitive field in Nigeria.

Petroleum Engineer: N200,000 to N1,000,000 per month.
How to Become a Petroleum Engineer?
As previously mentioned, Nigeria holds membership in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, which becomes a significant factor in the high pay for petroleum engineers. However, another reason why it is so difficult to break into the field is. You must complete a five-year study at any recognised institution nationwide and obtain the certification to become a petroleum engineer.

Aircraft Pilot: N500,000 – N3,000,000 per month.

How to Become a Pilot?

It would be expensive for you to become a pilot in Nigeria. Aviation schools typically charge between N7 million and N10 million for flying lessons. Your training would be finished in any aviation school recognised by the Federal Aviation Authority in about four years.

Software Developer: N134,000 to N400,000 per month.

How to Become a Software Developer?

A computer science degree is suggested but not required to work as a software developer. However, you can begin working as a software developer with basic programming knowledge and an eagerness to learn more. However, there is a condition. Software development is a field that is constantly changing, so you must keep up by regularly updating your knowledge and obtaining the necessary certifications.

Conclusion

Ross Warner HR Solutions routinely succeeds in new recruitment in Nigeria because we put the resources into understanding and valuing client and applicant needs. We also rigorously validate every candidate and client demand with our meticulous documentation procedure, which ensures that we only work with quality requirements and applicants. We provide that everyone is involved in the design and working toward the same objective.

Our crew has undergone training to provide an efficient and all-inclusive recruitment solution for African companies looking for candidates looking for jobs in Nigeria for Indians. Our staff effectively manages all aspects of workforce mobilisation, screening, and documentation. Whether we undertake domestic or international searches, we always respect the calibre and secrecy of recruitment services. Our goal is to surpass the expectations of our customers consistently. We enhance the calibre of the service we provide to clients and candidates as we gain expertise and experience.