Segmentation:

The market is divided into two categories based on type: micellar casein isolate and micellar casein concentrate. Due to the extensive processing that isolate products undergo, which results in higher protein concentrations and lower carbohydrate contents, the isolate product market is larger than the concentrate product market. By 2026, the market for micellar casein concentrate will be worth over US$ 700 million, whereas the CAGR for micellar casein isolates will only be a modest 4.4%.
