

Liquid chlorophyll

The green liquid supplement being dripped into drinks is actually chlorophyllin, a semi-synthetic mixture of sodium copper salts derived from chlorophyll. (Chlorophyllin also can be purchased and used in topical and pill form.) Chlorophyllin is often used as a detoxifying agent, as it helps the body to rid itself of harmful toxins. In addition, it is a powerful antioxidant, meaning that it helps to fight off the damaging effects of free radicals in the body. Chlorophyllin has also been shown to have anti-cancer properties, making it an important supplement for anyone looking to improve their health. If you are interested in adding chlorophyllin to your diet, be sure to speak with your doctor first to ensure that it is the right supplement for you.
