Keeping up with chiropractic-specific coding and insurance regulations is time-consuming and error-prone for in-house staff. Errors in coding lead to claim denials and revenue loss.

2. Inadequate Revenue Cycle Management

Chiropractors often struggle with managing health account receivables and following up on claims, impacting cash flow and financial stability.

Administrative burdens reduce the time and energy chiropractors can dedicate to patient treatment, ultimately affecting patient satisfaction and retention.

Outsourcing chiropractic billing to a specialized service provider can help practices overcome these challenges.
