

Incorporating Your Flooring Design As A Home Renovation Element

At the start of any new home renovation project, it is common for a myriad of design features to come to mind. While you are dreaming of new lighting, brightly painted walls, modern appliances, and even molding, it is easy to forget about what's under your feet. Every design element in your home works together to create an aesthetic that is pleasing to the eye. Therefore, bringing your floors into your plans is the perfect finishing touch. Lion's Den Construction has a few suggestions to help you incorporate your floors into your overall interior design during your renovations.
