What Does A Stucco Contractor Do?

A stucco contractor is a professional who applies a plaster-like material to the exterior of buildings. Stucco is made from Portland cement, sand, and water, and it is a popular choice for both residential and commercial structures because it is durable and has a textured finish that can be painted any color.

Stucco contractors use a variety of tools to apply stucco to walls, including trowels, brushes, and spraying equipment. They must also be familiar with the different types of stucco mixes and how to mix them properly.

In addition to applying stucco, Masonry contractors near me may also be responsible for repairing existing stucco buildings. This may involve patching cracks or holes or applying a new coat of stucco over an old one.
