Sire Jackson- Parents

50 Cent -Father

Curtis James Jackson III, widely known as 50 Cent, was born on July 6, 1975, in Queens, New York City. He grew up in the Jamaica neighborhood, raised by a single mother. Unfortunately, when he was only eight years old, his mother passed away in a fire that remains a mystery. From that point on, his grandmother took care of him.

Despite his challenging upbringing, 50 Cent's life took an extraordinary turn. He gained fame as a hip-hop artist and businessman, captivating audiences with his gritty lyrics and his inspiring journey from poverty to success. He had a rough past with crime, drugs, and violence, but when he shifted his focus to music it paid off big time with his 2003 album "Get Rich or Die Tryin".

50 Cent quickly became a major player in the gangsta rap scene of the early 2000s and changed the music industry forever. He also branched out into other projects like G-Unit, his hip-hop group. His entrepreneurial spirit led him to invest in soda water companies and video games, expanding his influence as a businessman.

Daphne Joy- Mother

Sire Jackson is the son of Daphne Joy, a multi-talented Puerto Rican and Filipino actress, model, entrepreneur, and host. She and 50 Cent were together for two years before they separated in 2012. Daphne has made a name for herself with her modeling career which began when she was 17.

She also owns the fashion brand Daphne Joy Collection which sells clothing for women of all sizes and swimwear. Her work has been featured in magazines such as King, Show, Smooth, BlackMen, and the Ed Hardy Swim Campaign. She has acted in MTV's "Nick Cannon Presents: Wild 'N Out" as well as "Curb Your Enthusiasm," "Criminal Minds" and "CSI: Las Vegas", and been a video vixen in music videos such as "What You Got" and "Miss Independent".

When not in the spotlight, Daphne loves to cook and travel to different places. She leads a balanced lifestyle that goes beyond the glitz of show business...Read More
