If you're looking for countertops, which will give your kitchen a whole new look and fresh feel, so you get confused about which countertop is best for the kitchen. On popular demand- it is Granite Worktops, and it will make your kitchen the one sought in a modular kitchen.

What is Granite?

Granite is a natural stone composed of mica, quartz and feldspar. The mixing of these minerals during the formation of stones defines the granite's color and texture with almost 200 colors and styles of Granite Worktops; you've got a lot of choices. However, the most common granite worktops colors are white worktops, black worktops, grey worktops and brown worktops. Granite is used throughout the world for building, bathroom worktops, kitchen worktops, bridges and paving. These granite kitchen worktops are formed from sheets of polished stones combined to create the granite countertop. Granite Worktops is recognized as one of the most complex surfaces, and it will make the surface one of the easiest to clean materials on the market.

Granite Work-top:

Granite is a rigid material that you can easily cut to fit the shape and size of your kitchen. It will fit into any shape and size for a small kitchen or a large one. A granite worktop is heat resistant, and it can tolerate high temperatures. A granite worktop is a porous material, and it is not stained resistant if you're looking to preserve the beauty of the granite worktops, you should ensure that you don't make stains or clean them every day as soon as possible. When you come to the benefits of worktops, it is vast, and it's also essential to see the pros and cons when making the final decisions. For many homeowners, the fact that granite is easily adaptable with any style is a huge benefit, and it will make your home valuable.

How do Granite and Marble Work-top Differ?

Each option comes in a variety of colors and patterns. White Marble worktops are known for their high glow appearance and veins that run throughout; it is more flecked. Both are extremely tough as natural stones, though marble is slightly softer and more porous than granite. This indicates that stone is the more durable option and is less sensitive to staining, chips, and scratches. While both marble and stone worktops are of better quality, granite is generally less expensive than marble.

Granite Worktops Differ from Quartz Worktops:

Quartz worktops are not natural stones. Quartz has significantly more color options. The two surfaces have a variety of appealing countertop characteristics, including being solid, stain-free, and heat-resistant. However, when it comes to the final option, granite is the best choice. Quartz has grown significantly in recent years, but granite has always been the best choice. It is slightly more expensive than others, but when you want the best, the cost of granite worktops is not an issue.

Why Choose Granite Work-tops:

Granite Counter-tops - Tough & Durable:

Granite is rock-hard. Granite countertops will serve you well for a long time. They resist chipping, scratching, and breaking. Due to their hardness, granite counters are likewise heat resistant. If you can chip or break the stone, it is generally easy to repair, depending on how severe the damage is. Having said that, on the off chance that you occasionally set a hot dish or plate directly on the countertop, it won't harm how it would overlay wood and other milder materials.

Maintenance is Easy:

Granite worktops should be sealed to prevent staining and bacteria growth. Granite is easier to clean, and if you want your worktop to last for decades, make sure you clean it if anything spills. Keep it in mind that sealant should be reapplied once in every year.

Long Term Investment:

If you're using granite worktops at your home and the granite comes over 30+years. When the other person has wooden countertops and he changes them twice a year as soon as they damage, it will be a long-term investment for you. You should choose granite worktops whenever you install worktops for your kitchen.

Highly Affordable:

Almost every homeowner chooses granite for their kitchen counters as they are highly affordable, and the thickness of the slab is one of the most important factors in deciding the granite for your kitchen.
