

Can I get PR in Germany after study?

Germany seems to be world's best destination for people looking to reside abroad due to its diversified culture, innovative technology, career possibilities, and academic growth. The country is frequently recognized as the world's fifth most popular travel destination, and it is a good competitor for university education. As a result, students finishing the Masters or PhD from a top-tier university in Germany are most likely to seek Permanent Residence \(PR\) in Germany following graduation. We offer a guide outlining all you need to know about if a PR in Germany seems to be the best option for you, as well as important data about Germany PR guidelines & PR in Germany for foreign students.

With the world's fifth largest economy, Germany has been a favourite destination for foreigners seeking permanent residence. The country's robust manufacturing industry, technical sectors, and R&D activities make it an appealing destination for immigrants. Germany, on the other hand, is experiencing a skills deficit and is in need of skilled migrants to fulfil labour needs in its industries. Migrants are encouraged to come to Germany for employment or education, and after a few years in the country, they can apply for a Germany study visa. Is it, however, easy to obtain a PR in Germany in 2022?

Let's look at the qualifying requirements, application circumstances, and developments in German immigration rules that impact the outcome of the PR visa consultants to address this question.

Factors to Consider When Applying for Study Visa Germany

1) Period of Stay

If you have lived in Germany for five years or longer, you could apply for a permanent residency permit. You can apply for a German PR visa if you really are studying and working in Germany and have a legal residence permit.

- If you graduated from a German institution and operated in Germany over two years on the residence permit after finishing your studies, you are eligible for the PR visa.
- After working in the nation for 21–33 months and having an EU Blue Card, you can apply for a PR visa.
- After three years as a self-employed individual with a provisional residence status, you could apply for permanent residency.

2) Professional Qualification and Earnings

You can seek for a Germany PR right away if you are a highly skilled professional with an annual income of more than 84,000 Euros.

You can earn your PR right away if you have specialized technical knowledge or are active in academic teaching or research. You'll need the following items for this:

- Evidence of your employment offer
- Financial means of subsistence
- Adaptability to the native culture
- German Language Proficiency

To earn PR, you must be able to communicate in German. It is necessary to have a B1 level of German, which should be very simple if you have lived in the nation for more than two years. Aside from that, you'll need to be familiar with German culture.

Permanent Residency in Germany Has Its Advantages

You will be eligible for greater benefits as a permanent resident in Germany than you were as a skilled migrant. This includes the following:

- Your residence permit does not need to be renewed every few years.
- Even if it is unrelated to your qualifications or degree, you will be able to shift employment or start a business. If you lose your job, you will be eligible for German social security benefits such as unemployment compensation.
- If you intend to study at a German institution, you could apply for financial aid.
- If you wish to buy real estate in Germany, you can receive a bank loan.

In a Nutshell

If you are looking to Study in Germany, immigration consultancy services and PR visa experts in Nehru place then Arotic Visa is the right place. Arotic Visa is one of the best immigration consultants and PR visa experts in Nehru place.