Same Day Settlement Loan Process

It is important to understand the lawsuit loan application process. Once understood, a client can better understand the steps involved in same day settlement loans.

The first step in the process is contacting the lawsuit loan company. Obviously, you are looking for the best lawsuit loan company. Learn how to find the best lawsuit loan company here.

Next, you speak to a lawsuit funding representative and tell him/her a little bit about the case. From that conversation, the company will complete an application and your case will be marked “pre-qualified” for funding. This means that, based on the initial conversation, the lawsuit funding company feels that there is a good chance they can help you.

Once the application is completed, the lawsuit funding company goes to work. The steps the company takes are:

1. Email or Fax correspondence to applicant’s attorney indicating their client has applied for funding on their case and requesting certain documents to be forwarded.
2. Once documents are received and are complete, they are sent to legal funding underwriting for review. A lawsuit funding underwriter will confirm the documents are in order and will set up a call to the lawyer’s office to speak about the case.
3. Once the attorney/underwriter phone call or correspondence occurs, the case is approved or denied for funding.
4. If denied, the client is informed of the decision so that he/she can seek funding elsewhere.
5. If approved, an offer is made to the client and contract presented if the amount is agreed upon.

Once a deal is reached, the same day settlement loan applicant and company execute the contract. Once returned, the case is sent to the funding department for ACH deposit, wire transfer or overnight check delivery.

That concludes the settlement loan process.
