

What is Included in a Canadian Criminal Record Check

A Canadian Criminal Record Check is an essential document for various purposes, including employment, immigration, volunteering, and more. This blog will provide a detailed overview of what a Canadian Criminal Record Check entails, what is included in it, the requirements for obtaining one, its validity, and how SekCheck can assist in simplifying the process.

What is a Canadian Criminal Record Check?

A Canadian Criminal Record Check is an official document issued by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP) or local police agencies that provides a record of an individual's criminal history in Canada. This check is used to verify whether a person has a criminal record and is a critical component for various applications such as:

- Employment: Many employers require a criminal record check to ensure the safety and integrity of their workplace.
- Immigration: Visa and immigration applications often mandate a criminal record check to assess the applicant's background.
- Volunteering: Organizations that work with vulnerable populations frequently require volunteers to undergo criminal record checks.
- Adoption: Prospective adoptive parents may need to provide a criminal record check as part of the adoption process.

What is Included in a Canadian Criminal Record Check?

An RCMP criminal background check typically includes the following information:

- Personal Identification Information: This includes the individual's full name, date of birth, and gender.
- Criminal Convictions: Records of any criminal convictions under Canadian law, including the nature of the offense, the date of conviction, and the sentence imposed.
- Outstanding Warrants: Information about any outstanding warrants for the individual's arrest.
- Charges Pending: Details of any charges that are currently pending against the individual.
- Peace Bonds: Information on any peace bonds or similar legal restraints that the individual is under.
- Absolute and Conditional Discharges: Records of any absolute or conditional discharges received within a certain period.
- Non-Conviction Information: In some cases, non-conviction information may be included, such as withdrawn charges or acquittals, particularly if they relate to vulnerable sector checks.

Requirements for Obtaining a Canadian Criminal Record Check

The process of obtaining a Canadian Criminal Record Check involves several steps and specific requirements, including:

- Application Form: Complete the relevant application form, which can be obtained from the RCMP or local police services.
- Identification: Provide valid identification, such as a passport, driver's license, or other government-issued ID.
- Consent: Written consent from the individual being checked, which is a mandatory requirement.
- Fees: Payment of applicable fees, which vary depending on the type of check and the issuing authority.
- Fingerprinting: For certain types of checks, such as vulnerable sector checks, fingerprinting may be required to ensure accuracy and prevent identity fraud.

Validity of a Canadian Criminal Record Check

The validity of a Canadian Criminal Record Check can vary depending on the purpose for which it is needed. Typically, employers or organizations may accept a record check that is up to six months old. However, for immigration or adoption processes, more recent checks may be required. It's important to verify the specific validity requirements with the requesting entity to ensure compliance.
