When a Minister Speaks: Before Kissing the Bride. Some of you might be wondering what is a charge? It has nothing to do with money or Limo Service Near Me. A charge is most often found in traditional Christian weddings.

A charge is when the minister that is marrying the couple will directly speak to the couple with a few sentences. In essence the minister speaks to them to provide positive feedback, this can come in many forms.

Recommendation of what they should do, for example: continue to provide love for each other in all circumstances.

They may give advice, for example: advising them to be loyal to each other always.

The minister may also just speak to reaffirm why they are coming together, for example: let love be your guide in your relationship and solve all your problems, as it has lead you here.

A charge may be most common in Christian weddings, but there is no reason that they can't be used in all different types of religious, or non-religious weddings. You can even write your own charge, if there is something you as a couple would like to reflect on before saying "I do."
