

Fill my daughter's room with butterflies

I have a lovely daughter, her name is coco, she is 5 years old this year.

One morning, my daughter crawled onto my bed while I was still dreaming, and she woke me up by riding on my back. My daughter said that she caught a butterfly. I turned my eyes to her hand. Yes, she caught a swallowtail butterfly, but looking at the butterfly, it seemed that it was about to be pinched to death by my daughter.

I told my daughter that the butterfly is about to die. My daughter looked at the butterfly, her face disappeared from the previous joy, tears slowly overflowed from the corner of her eyes, I knew that in a few seconds, my daughter will cry and cry, I will definitely receive The wife yelled.

In order to prevent this from happening, I touched my daughter's head and told my daughter that maybe the butterfly is sleepy. Let's let it rest for a while, OK? I can make the butterfly active and fly in your room forever. Do you trust dad?

Finally my daughter doesn't look so sad anymore

When my daughter was asleep, I carefully stole the butterfly and released it to life. I think it would be very sad when my daughter woke up to find that the butterfly was missing. I plan to use the butterfly background drawings to decorate my daughter's room. A surprise for my daughter.

When my daughter woke up, I heard her laughter in the living room without accident. The daughter hopped up to me and said, there are many butterflies in my room, come and see. I said, my dear daughter, that is what your butterfly became, and the butterfly told me that it also likes you and wants to be with you.

But daughter said: I saw it, Dad is my butterfly.

Yes, my smart daughter knows everything.
