1. Lighting

Lighting is an incredibly important factor in any space. When designing spaces, lighting should always be considered first. Lighting can have a huge influence on mood, color temperature, and the way people interact with a space. Lighting is just as important in the interior design world as it is in architecture or graphic arts. Lighting creates shadows and highlights and brings attention to specific elements. Lighting designers make sure these lights are placed appropriately and at right levels.

2. Flooring

Flooring is another big factor in the overall feel of a space. Whether its hardwood flooring, carpeting, tile, etc., the right type of flooring goes hand-in-hand with the decor and layout of the space. A lot of times, we forget about how floors look until after they're installed, but before they had to be placed, they were designed! Flooring designers create patterns, textures, and shapes to add a little interest to plain surfaces.

3. Paint

Paint is one of the biggest factors in any space. Color and texture play a huge role in what makes a room inviting or not. Painters use paint to change the entire character of rooms. There are many different types of paints (oil, latex, water base, acrylic, epoxy, etc.) that are applied for various reasons. Many designers choose colors based on their own personal taste rather than following trends.

4. Cabinets

Cabinet hardware is also very important to consider. Cabinet hardware provides storage options that can be used to organize items effectively. Storage cabinets help keep everything where it belongs and prevent clutter from building up. They also protect valuable possessions from damage or theft.
