Some people downplay Shakespeare because he recycled recognized plots of his plays, but his writing is appealing. Who doesn't feel heartache for the character Hamlet approximately of the play? Who doesn't despise Lady MacBeth? Harvest feel sorry for King Lear? Alcohol Shakespeare was something everyone could enjoy, from the highly literate aristocracy to the common worker. The plots are fascinating african blackwood exciting, of course, but the beauty of Shakespeare could be the poetry for the text. It's timeless.

Paradise Lost, to me, is the literary same as Beethoven's Ninth Symphony. It's well comprehend Beethoven composed his last symphony while completely hard of hearing. Paradise Lost was recited by Milton to scribe because Milton was completely covering. If you haven't read it, try reading part of this. The beauty of the poetry is breathtaking.
