

Does Baja Blast Have Caffeine? Here's What You Need To Know - Mountain

Mountain Dew Baja Blast was first introduced in 2004 as part of a series of limited-edition tropical flavors and quickly become popular among fans of the soda brand. The Zero version was released in 2015, allowing those looking for a caffeine-free alternative to enjoy the unique flavor of Baja Blast. It has since become a staple in stores and restaurants around the world. Yes, Mountain Dew Baja Blast is now available in countries such as Canada, Australia, the UK and more. The Zero version of the drink can also be found in certain locations, however it is recommended to check with local retailers for availability. Overall, Mountain Dew Baja Blast offers a unique tropical lime flavor that many fans of the soda brand enjoy. It contains high levels of sugar and sodium which makes it unsuitable for those looking for a healthier option. However, the Zero version can provide an alternative caffeine-free choice to the original drink and can be found in certain countries outside of the US. Whether you're looking to enjoy it chilled or as an ingredient in recipes, Baja Blast is sure to add some flavor and fun to any occasion. Baja Blast can be used as an ingredient to add a unique fruity flavor to various recipes and drinks. Here are some ideas: – Baja Blast Margarita: mix 1 part tequila, 1 part triple sec, 1/2 part lime juice and 2 parts Baja Blast for a refreshing summertime cocktail. - <https://mtnlyoncafe.com/blog/does-baja-blast-have-caffeine/>