

Bollywood characters we would love to meet in real life

We have always wondered what if we could meet some of our favorite Bollywood characters? What if we could spend a day with them, just chatting about life in general? Maybe a date with some of them, or maybe we could be their supporting actor in the movie?

We are sure you too at some point have thought about the same, so here goes our list of what characters we want to spend a day with.

1. Veronica

Movie: Cocktail.

The movie cocktail is Cocktail because of Veronica. The character single-handedly carries the story. She is the personification of goodness personified.

We would love to sit down with her and talk about how she has been, the girl has lived without her familial support and has learned to be a free-spirited being but not rude or arrogant. When she saw Meera in distress, she helped her right away without any hesitation. Many people may feel that Veronica is unlucky in love, but out of all she has a heart full of love and goodness and we would kill to be her friend!

2.Shashi Godbole

Movie: English Vinglish

Our list would be incomplete without Shashi, we would love to meet her and give her a tight hug if possible. The movie has made us emotional in so many moments when she has been humiliated or found her passion. The character growth in this movie is totally inspiring.

We have a lot to learn from the woman who did not let her humiliation sit there, she moved with it and learned new things and proved herself right for the sake of herself. She did not stop from doing the right thing thinking about what people will think. 3.Vicky/ Vikram

Movie: Vicky Donor

Vicky Donor has to be one of the movies which set the tone for the new world Bollywood movies. We would love to meet Vikram someday and ask him how he has managed everything? When everything was so chaotic throughout.

He is the Delhi guy, every delhite looks up to in terms of standing up to their parents.

He managed to choose an unconventional way of helping society while living with his mother and Biji, those two would have killed him at first. Then he also managed to have a love life while hiding so many things at first, that too with the girl his mother and biji did not approve of. We would love to sit with him and ask where he found the courage to be rebellious in his own stance and stood up for himself when everything was going down south.
