Have an idea, have the money and resources but still clueless where to start? We feel you, and honestly you are not alone. While most start-up ideas die because of lack of knowledge and support, many that work initially and fail subsequently could do much better with a more strategic process and implementation suggest our experts.

Roadblocks of Start-up journey

- Poor Time Management
- Investor and funding crunch
- Unavailability of right talent
- Non-existent sales and marketing
- Improper planning and strategies
- Tough competition
- Lack of knowledge

Imagine taking care of all aspects of your business; strategy, marketing, finance, operations, technology and equipment, etc., sounds tedious, and more like a 'One person Army' situation, just that you are no army. The struggle is real but also doable provided you have expertise to back you up. To ideate and build a start-up and a successful market launch all by yourself is a dream and undeniably not a one person job. It may theoretically sound like a much sorted process but involves numerous iterations, permutations and combinations of products and services that might work in the ever dynamic market.

In this scenario, what works best is an accelerator or an incubator with a team of professionals, an army if you will, that works on your idea, and inputs expertise and talent to bring your idea to life, SUCCESSFULLY.

Why opt for an accelerator.
