Even the most experienced slot players can be overwhelmed by all the different betting options that slot games offer while trying to follow a solid bankroll management system in an effort to win the Jackpot. Many players, especially those with a lot more experience in the game, like to use the Skill Stop feature offered in many slot machines. They claim that this feature allows them to have more control over their game. The question is, can the Skill Stop really have an impact on how often you win? We've decided to dedicate this article to the Skill Stop and other alternative ways of helping you win more often. Let's see Pragmatic 88

Skill Stop - Does it control the game?

The main reason why some slot players like to use the Skill Stop is because it allows them to control the result of the reels, at least in theory. Some say that by stopping the reels on demand, they can alter the outcome and make the difference between losing a bet and perhaps hitting the progressive. To assess if this is really true, we need to understand that the outcome of every spin of the reels in online slots is actually determined by a mathematical algorithm called the Random Number Generator. The result that the reels will produce is actually calculated within 1/1,000 of a second, so if what you are trying to do is time the Skill Stop to get the exact result that you're looking for, I can tell you right now that this is next to impossible.

Another reason why players like to use the Skill Stop is because they claim that this feature allows them to effectively influence the game. This statement is actually true. If you let the reels spin and stop on their own, you do get a different result than if you stop them using the Skill Stop. The reality, however, is that you still pretty much rely on your luck to line up the reels in a winning combination.

Bankroll Management - An Effective Strategy

As most slot players will tell you, the trick in playing slots - especially progressive Jackpot, is to be able to play for as long as possible without going bust. This is where having a solid bankroll management comes into play. The objective here is to stretch your money as much as possible to keep playing for longer, thus giving you far more chances of getting more bonuses and ultimately hit the jackpot.

To achieve this, you don't need to have a huge budget to play with. Something that is very effective is to search for those slot games that offers many winning combinations, generous bonus symbols and the highest payout possible. Another great way to boost your bankroll is to look for casinos that offer the highest bonuses on your first deposit and if possible reload (subsequent) deposit bonuses. These type of bonuses will instantly give you twice or more money to play with, for free!

As you can see, the Skill Stop feature does allow you to affect the outcome of the game but not in the way that you were probably hoping for. The most effective way to increase your chances of winning is to get as much free money as possible on your deposits, play the highest payout games with most winning combinations and follow a solid bankroll management system. So focus on these three aspects of your strategy and let the winnings roll-in!

Slots are among the most popular casino games played all around the world. Like most casino games, Slots are games of chance, so it's next to impossible to influence the outcome of the game.
