

Landscaping

Landscaping is a small piece of land that is altered to improve its viability, value, and look. The landscape can involve the craft and art of growing plants with an aim of creating beauty within the landscape area of the property. If you can see a fixed feature in your yard that affects the aesthetics or practical functioning of your property, then it is part of its "landscaping." The practical features of one's landscaping, such as underground drainage systems, are equally important even though they are not visible.
