

Antimicrobial Copper Tool For Cold Sores

If you have a family with seasonal colds and flu, you may be interested in trying an antimicrobial copper tool for your health and wellness. This product is made of pure copper, which is believed to kill the virus upon contact. While it hasn't been clinically tested, it is believed to be effective and safe. And because copper is naturally non-toxic, it is a great choice for people who have sensitive skin.

There are several benefits to using an antimicrobial copper tool for cold sore prevention. The metal is highly effective against bacteria. During cold sore prevention, copper is usually recommended. In addition to treating cold sores, it can help prevent infections from becoming more severe. A good way to apply the copper-based tool for cold sore prevention is to apply it to the affected area. However, you should not do this every time you touch your cold sore.

Another advantage of using copper is its long-term protection from bacterial and fungal growth. It can kill a common cause of cold sores and is effective against many other germs.