Pet Waste is Dangerous to Your Health

- Pet waste is more than just a nuisance – it is also a serious health hazard. It is considered raw sewage and can contain harmful bacteria and parasites that can be tracked into your home and infect you, your family, and even your pets.
- Every time it rains, thousands of pounds of pet waste left on the ground is washed into storm drains that may lead directly into our streams, causing pollution in our waterways.

What Can You Do?

- Every pet owner plays a part in preventing water pollution in our watersheds. Responsible pet owners pick up after their pets, both at home and on public land.
- Carry disposable bags and pick up pet waste when out on walks, in your yard, or in a park. Properly dispose of pet waste by bagging and sealing the waste and depositing it in a trash can or pet waste receptacle. Do not place it in a storm drain or leave it on the ground.

What is Our Watershed?

A watershed is the total land area, including your yard, from which water drains into streams, rivers or other bodies of water. Montgomery County has two major watersheds, all of its land area draining to either the Potomac or Patuxent Rivers, both which eventually flow into the Chesapeake Bay.

IMPORTANT: Pet owners who do not properly dispose of pet waste may be subject to fines for each offense.
