

Australia Immigration set out new rules for certain occupations

Are you planning to immigrate to Australia, you must know The Department of Home Affairs Australia (DHA) replaced the Priority Migration Skilled Occupation List (PMSOL), which it deemed "outdated," with a new method for processing visas that will give priority to educators and medical professionals before employer-sponsored visas.

In an effort to reduce the Australian PR visa processing time and eliminate Australian immigration or visa processing backlogs, and solve Australia's labor crisis, the Department of Home Affairs Australia has released revised guidelines for Australia PR visa application priority.

Under the new directive, at least 15 Australia visa categories will be processed faster, including

- Australia Skilled Independent visa subclass 189.
- Australia state sponsor or Nominated Visa Subclass 190.
- Employer Nomination Scheme visa subclass 482
- Regional Sponsored / nominated visa subclass 491
- Business Innovation and Investment (Provisional) Subclass,

The most recent change went into effect on 1st Jan 2023 and the sectors of education and health are now at the top of the list for expedited visa processing.
