

What is training and development

Training and Development in HRM can be defined as a system used by an organization to improve the skills and performance of the employees to improve productivity in an organization. Click the link for more information: <https://www.hrhelpboard.com/training-development.html>