

Kedarkantha Trek — My First Himalayan Trek Experience

Today I randomly scrolled web pages about Kedarkantha Trek and found someone's page writing his experience about this trek so I thought—should write something about my experience too.

So, it was about past few months during February end and I was randoly planning for this trek !!! like not seriously. I randomly shared about Kedarkantha trek with friends in group chat and I don't know how—but they all were ready to go!!!! Amazing nah...

And then we started packing our bags—We chose Trek The Himalayas for our trek and seriously they provide the perfect services.

We all grouped early morning in Dehradun and here our journey Started for heaven!!! From Dehradun (City) in a Traveller to Sankri (Himalayan Offbeat Village) in a homestay ... best travelling day I had experienced.

On next day early morning—Our trek leader guided us about trek like how-to walk-in snow, walk slow, team building strategies, helping hand and all. I learned a thing—Trekking or travelling in not like to achieving a target, but its about to enjoy a journey in between!!! We reached our Camp Site—and the food provided by TTH team is superb!!! We were provided best food in high altitude—it was amazing experience.

Finally, when Trek leader Told us—"Today we will summit to Kedarkantha Peak and can seem mighty Himalayas Peaks", I got super excited for same and rest steps went unbelievable. In every next step, we were gaining altitude and so getting close to Mighty Peaks.

and then Finally—It was Peak time... yeah, we Reached ...Hurray!!!!

See, When I planned about Kedarkantha Trek, I was excited about Himalayas, mountains, valleys etc!!! But it's not like that—I found that Trekking teaches us—"We are not guests to Nature but we are a part of same."
