Here's what you should know before buying them.

Some Significant Things to Know Before You Buy Central Otago Wines

Central Otago is New Zealand's southernmost wine region, located on the South Island of the country. It is known for its unique combination of cool climate, long growing season and challenging terrain that results in small yields of high-quality grapes.

The region's vineyards are mostly planted on steep, south-facing slopes, which provide optimal exposure to sunlight while maintaining a cool climate. The cool climate allows the grapes to ripen slowly, developing complex flavours and aromas. The region also experiences high diurnal temperature variation. This means that a large difference in temperature between daytime and night-time. This also helps to maintain acidity in the grapes which gives them a nice balance.

Pinot Noir is the most widely grown grape variety in Central Otago. The region is considered to be one of the best places in the world to produce this grape. The wines produced from this grape are known for their rich fruit flavours, floral aromas and high acidity. Central Otago Pinot Noir has gained international recognition and is considered some of the world's best.

Other grape varieties grown in Central Otago include Riesling, Chardonnay, Sauvignon Blanc and Pinot Gris. These wines tend to be crisp and acidic, with vibrant fruit flavours and aromas. Many wineries in Central Otago are small, family-owned operations, which often sell their wines directly to consumers. This makes it easy for visitors to the region to experience the wines firsthand and learn about the winemaking process.
