

Are vertical blinds still in style?

Are vertical blinds still in style today? What is on-trend when it comes to blinds? Are they worth the money? We know that when you are looking for blinds to cover specific spaces, you will run across vertical blinds. You are probably thinking about if they are worth using and still in style. At Venluree Blinds, you can see the latest trends and help you navigate if vertical blinds are suitable for the space.

Vertical blinds are still in style and are common in homes for many reasons. While Vertical Blinds made their peak appearance in the '80s and '90s as a style choice, they continue to dominate today because they are incredibly versatile.

- Light control: control the amount of light coming into the space.
- Large Spaces: great for slider doors and other large windows
- Foundation Blinds: The best option for a primary set of blinds or window coverings that are then embellished with a more styled curtain around them.
- Affordable: Vertical blinds are still in style mainly because they are such an excellent value for homeowners.
- Repairs: Since vertical blinds have multiple parts that are easy to get to, they are relatively easy to repair if you need to fix a few pieces. These become extremely popular and make for a longer-lasting product overall.

Are vertical blinds in style for every window?

In past years, vertical blinds were trendy for almost any window. Nowadays, the popularity of vertical blinds has focused mainly on the slider door space rather than other everyday windows. We see this shift simply because there are so many other great choices for these different spaces. That said, the classic vertical blind is still highly desirable and functional for slider doors and back doors, making it a longstanding popular choice!

There are so many factors that go into answering this question, but if we base it off of use and popularity, we'd say they are still in style. The better question is if they are right for you! Just because something is "in style" doesn't mean that it is the right choice for your home. Our experts can help you find the right solution for your windows and truly make your home shine like it was meant to!
