Global Isostatic Pressing Market Growth Restraint

High Capital Investment Required for IP Equipment & Infrastructure - Isostatic pressing equipment like autoclaves or presses is expensive to acquire, especially for smaller businesses entering the market. The high upfront investment required for purchasing & maintaining the equipment becomes a barrier for small industries and thus limits the adoption of IP technology. Moreover, IP also requires dedicated infrastructure like high-pressure vessels, containment systems, & support facilities, which further incurs massive costs. In addition, operating and maintaining this infrastructure also involve constant expenses. Hence, the high cost associated with IP equipment & infrastructure is the major growth restraint for the Global Isostatic Pressing Market.
