What is the difference between Exhibition and Trade Fair?

Both are public events, although there is a difference between an exhibition and a trade fair.

What is Industrial Fair?

However, it focuses on a specific industrial sector. An industrial fair is basically the same as a trade fair, for example, in one type of industrial fair, companies such as gas, oil, and petroleum may participate in the fair in that particular sector. Exhibit Global designed and built the stands at ADIPEC in the Middle East.

Who Goes to Trade Fairs?

The trade fair is an industry-only event, so it is open to industry participants and customers only. These trade fairs are generally not open to the public, so they are classified as 'public' or 'trade only'. Trade fairs are attended only by company representatives and customers.
