

Division of Gaming Enforcement (DGE) gaming revenue results report

Atlantic City, primarily online gaming and sports wagering, as we approach the end of the year,” said Steve Callender, President of the Casino Association of New Jersey. “Sports betting and tourism are strengthening the city’s overall revitalization, and we look forward to continuing this progress in 2020.”

The DGE report released on Thursday shows that November gaming revenue for Atlantic City was over $288 million. This reflects a 16.5 percent increase over the same period last year.

Other highlights from the DGE report include:

- Online gaming revenue was over $49 million, up 82.4 percent from November 2018
- Sports wagering revenue was over $15 million, up 34.6 percent from November 2018
- The industry generated over $25 million in taxes and fees collected by the state in November 2019

“2019 has been a great year so far for Atlantic City with an increase in tourism, thanks to gaming, sports wagering and other positive developments across the city,” said Joe Kelly, President of the Greater Atlantic City Chamber. “The casino industry continues to serve as the backbone of the city, region and state’s economy, and these steady economic gains are an encouraging sign that the city is a top seaside resort destination.” 파워볼사이트

The casino industry continues to work to solidify the seaside resort’s comeback by diversifying Atlantic City’s offerings, as well as investing hundreds of millions of dollars in redevelopment projects and non-gaming services to attract new visitors. The industry’s efforts have advanced the revitalization of Atlantic City, transforming the city into a business conference destination and first-class resort that features great restaurants, entertainment and shopping
