

N.R. Narayana Murthy: Architect Of Innovation At Infosys

N.R. Narayana Murthy is a big-shot Indian businessman and a generous person who helps others. He helped start Infosys, a huge company that gives advice and services about technology. He was born on August 20, 1946, and he's like a pioneer, which means he's one of the first people to do something really important. He started Infosys in 1981 with some friends. At first, it was tough, but he didn't give up. He always cared a lot about doing good work, making customers happy, and being fair. Because of that, Infosys became a big deal in the world of technology. He's like a boss of Infosys, and under his guidance, the company came up with a cool idea called the "global delivery model." It's like using smart people in India to help companies all over the world with their tech stuff. This made India a big player in the tech world.

To Read more about N.R. Narayana Murthy: Architect Of Innovation At Infosys Visit Nishant Verma website

