Which Factors Should Packaging Companies Consider When Choosing an ERP System?

An ERP system is necessary for the packaging industry in India. It integrates essential activities like finance, inventory, production, and customer relationship management. To select the best ERP for the sector, consider industry-specific functionality, integration capabilities, scalability and customization, and etc. Choose a solution that meets industry demands and provides reliable analytical and reporting features. Read here for more info about ERP systems for packaging companies.