

Bird Control Solutions - How to Get Rid of Bird Droppings

Birds are a common nuisance pest that cause damage to property. They can contaminate food, make a mess and spread diseases.

Their acidic droppings corrode metal and clog gutters, while their feathers block drains and cause roof problems. Investing in permanent deterrents like bird netting can eliminate property defacement, disease and noise caused by pest birds. Excessive bird activity can cause a significant problem for businesses & commercial property owners. In addition to the obvious unsightly and dirty appearance, droppings can be corrosive, contaminate food, pose health and safety hazards and attract rodents.

Feral birds such as pigeons are common in urban areas where they disrupt outdoor activities, make a mess of building surfaces and carry diseases and parasites. Their faeces corrode buildings, car paint and obstruct gutters and drains. They also contaminate food in outdoor cafes, restaurants and rubbish bins by spreading scraps.

We offer a range of long-term bird control solutions, including bird spikes and netting, to discourage unwanted species from nesting or roosting on your premises. These can be installed around your home or business in a variety of places such as loft installations, air conditioning units, solar panels, ledges and more. The duration of the work varies depending on the scope of the job and how quickly the birds become accustomed to the deterrents.

Lice and fleas are both wingless insects that feed by sucking blood from their host. They are most commonly found on cats and dogs, but can also infest humans.

Lice primarily live on hairy parts of the body, such as the armpits and ears. Fleas, on the other hand, have flat bodies and move about more quickly. They tend to stay in areas of warmth and often reside in carpets and fabrics.

Bird droppings are corrosive and can damage buildings and monuments, while the acidic content can cause respiratory disease in humans who come into contact with them. The longer an infestation persists, the more expensive it will be to clean up and repair damages caused by birds.

A reputable pest control company will offer free evaluations and estimates without obligation. They will also comply with local laws and regulations. Lastly, they will provide transparent and clear pricing to avoid any unnecessary upselling. They may even offer a guarantee and warranty to ensure your satisfaction.

Birds prefer to nest in cosy, dark areas away from weather and predators – these spaces are often the eaves of homes or near the roofline. This creates a problem as birds can leave droppings that are very acidic and will eventually cause damage to the roofing material. They can also cause water leaks or block the guttering system causing flooding. They may also pose a fire risk or create a hazard for those working on the roof.

They also leave a mess, defacing buildings and walkways with their nesting materials and droppings that are corrosive and carry lice, fleas, ticks, mites and disease such as salmonella and influenza. Their noise and aggressive behaviour can create a negative customer experience in restaurants, cafes and hotels.

Preventing birds from nesting in these spaces is usually a matter of using netting, spikes, and other barriers that make it uncomfortable for them to roost or nest. It is best to use multiple strategies that confuse the bird so they do not become accustomed to the deterrents and thus render them useless.

Bird droppings are unpleasant and dangerous to humans, but they're also corrosive and can damage structures. They can also pose a liability issue for businesses. In a worst-case scenario, employees or customers could slip on the debris and sustain injuries.

Cleaning up bird droppings and repairing property damage can be costly over time. Installing a permanent bird deterrent like netting can save you money by preventing the need to continuously clean up and repair your commercial property.
