PDO Thread Lift for Hooded Eyes?

PDO eyebrow lift is a great option for resolving the wrinkled, collagen-depleted, saggy skin near the eye and eyebrow region of the face. PDO threads lift and tighten the skin while stimulating the body's natural healing response to the sutures, thereby triggering an influx of collagen to the treatment area. In this way, the PDO Thread Lift lasts an average of twenty months and help the body naturally produce the collagen that combats further effects of aging.

PDO Eyebrow lift procedure:

PDO (polydioxanone) is a type of thread that has been used in surgery for many years. Recently, it has become popular in the world of cosmetic medicine as a non-surgical alternative to facelifts and other procedures. In a PDO eyebrow lift, the threads are inserted just under the skin, where they lift and tighten the tissue. These threads are inserted using a small needle, and then gently pulled to lift the skin. The threads are then anchored in place, creating a natural-looking lift that can last for up to a year. One of the major benefits of a PDO eyebrow lift is that it provides instant results. As soon as the threads are in place, the skin is lifted and tightened, giving the patient a more youthful appearance. This can be particularly beneficial for those who are looking for a quick fix before a special event or occasion.

The procedure is relatively quick and can be done in as little as 30 minutes. It is performed under local anaesthesia, making it a painless procedure. After the procedure, the patient may experience some mild swelling and bruising, but this typically subsides within a few days. The results of a PDO eyebrow lift are immediate, with patients noticing a more lifted and youthful appearance to their eyebrows.
