Novak Djokovic and Rafael Nadal will put on a show Monday evening as the two top-ranked men's tennis stars in the world compete for the 2013 US Open title. Nadal and Djokovic will meet for the thirty-seventh time in their careers, the most by any duo in the modern Open era. The US Open tennis match up will be live streaming online and televised for sports fans to watch as a new men's Grand Slam champion is crowned at Flushing Meadow.

The Djokovic vs Nadal US Open final is set for a scheduled coverage start time of 5 p.m. EST. CBS will broadcast coverage on television, while the US Open Live portion of the official website will have live streaming online video of the match.

Nadal came in as seven time champion and was drawn in the same half as Djokovic, made possible by his 3rd seed. Nadal won the 2013 French Open after beating Djokovic in the semifinal 6-4, 3-6, 6-1, 6-7, 9-7 and Ferrer in the final. His semi-final clash with Djokovic was widely considered one of the greatest clay court matches ever played, and Nadal was 2 points away from victory in the 4th set but was denied by Djokovic and taken to a fifth set where he went down a break 4-2 only to break back and ultimately triumph 9-7 and take out a hard-fought 4-hour, 37-minute victory.
