Global Hyperautomation Market was valued at USD 5.82 Billion in 2021 and is expected to reach USD 18.91 Billion by the year 2028, at a CAGR of 21.75%.

Hyperautomation is a business-centric, disciplined approach that organizations use to quickly identify, inspect, and automate as many business and IT processes as possible.

Hyperautomation involves the systematic use of multiple technologies. Hyperautomation allows companies to quickly identify and automate as many processes as possible using technologies such as robotic process automation (RPA), low-code application platforms (LCAP), artificial intelligence (AI), and virtual assistants. Tools such as RPA, LCAP, and AI are considered process-independent software which is easier to be deployed across multiple IT and business uses in any organization. Process-agnostic software is most in demand as a major enabler of the ultra-automated trend. The fastest-growing category of hyper-automated software includes tools for mapping business activities, automating and managing content ingestion, coordinating work across multiple systems, and visualizing the deployment of complex rule engines. The market is expected to grow at double-digit rates until 2022. Other software designed to automate more specific tasks, such as ERP, supply chains, and CRM systems also expected to grow at a substantial rate.
