

What Is Hazard Perception Test?

The hazard perception test is designed to measure the ability of a person to detect and react to hurdles that they might come across while driving. During it, the learners are shown different video clips and asked on pointing out the hazardous situation. The score they receive depends on how fast they can detect hazards and answer the examiners. If learners miss identifying the same, they receive negative markings. Enroll in a driving school in Southbank to get best driving lessons in Australia.

Read full blog here.

