

Most Affordable Colleges in US- UNIGO

After high school, or secondary school, students attend a university or college in the United States. In the United States, a college is not the same as a high school or a secondary school. College and university programmes begin when a student is in their thirteenth year of high school, or when they are 17 or 18 years old. An associate's degree as well as certificates are available at a two-year college. A bachelor's degree is earned at a four-year college or university. "Undergraduate" schools are those that offer these degrees. Unigo is here to offer you with scholarships in Colleges in US. You can learn more without worrying about the finance.
