Skilled Migration to Australia: ACS Skill Assessment Requirements

The Australian Computer Society \(ACS\) is the authorized assessing authority designated by the Australian Ministry of Immigration to identify skilled engineers interested in migrating to Australia as skilled ICT professionals. The ACS conducts skill assessments to identify applicants from the ICT field with the necessary skills, knowledge, and capabilities required to migrate to Australia as skilled ICT professionals. The eligibility criteria for the ACS skill assessment vary depending on the level of education and work experience of the candidate. The ACS offers three levels of skill assessment based on the candidate's ICT qualifications and work experience. Candidates who have completed their bachelor's degree or higher in ICT or a closely related field to their nominated occupation are required to show two years of relevant work experience completed within the past ten years or four years of relevant work experience completed at any time in their past work history to meet the criteria. Candidates who have completed their bachelor's degree or higher in a field not closely related to their nominated occupation are required to show four years of relevant work experience completed at any time in their past work history to meet the criteria. Candidates who have completed their diploma advanced or associate degree and are closely related to their nominated occupation are required to show five years of relevant work experience completed within the past ten years or six years of relevant work experience completed at any time in their past work history to meet the criteria. Candidates who have completed their diploma advanced or associate degree and are not closely related to their nominated occupation are required to show six years of relevant work experience completed at any time in their past work history to meet the criteria.
