Planet Mars Quartz surface has a fine grain, numerous long white and beige veins, and a varying brown backdrop colour. As a result of long-ago geological events, Mars is traversed by a complex network of deep furrows. This served as the inspiration for a slab with rich, condensed colour and beautiful magnetic veining. The energy expressed by the movement of natural components is reflected on its surface. Cleaning the surface immediately can go a long way in maintaining the countertop last longer. Though quartz does resist stain for a brief period.

Various Veins and Patterns in Quartz Materials

The possibility of veins varies depending on the material you have to choose for your countertops. Because quartz countertops are man-made, it is easier to produce consistent veins from slab to slab to make sure that the overall pattern in your kitchen is constant. The veins in natural stones such as granite and marble will vary. If you want countertop patterns that are both unique and natural, stones such as marble and granite are wonderful choices. You may be confident that no one else will have the same pattern as you.

Choosing the Best Mars Quartz Veining Style for You

Then you might use Planet Mars Quartz if you want anything dramatic and strong. Others may like something curvy and delicate. When selecting these for your quartz countertops, make sure they complement the rest of your kitchen. Working with a kitchen specialist can help you to choose correct pattern.

How Do You Maintain Quartz Countertops?

Cleansing and Stain Removal on a Daily Basis

Quartz countertops should be cleaned on a regular basis to keep them in good shape. If you spill coffee, red wine, or any other dark liquid, wipe it up promptly with a damp cloth or kitchen towel - but don't worry, you won't harm the surface as you would with marble.

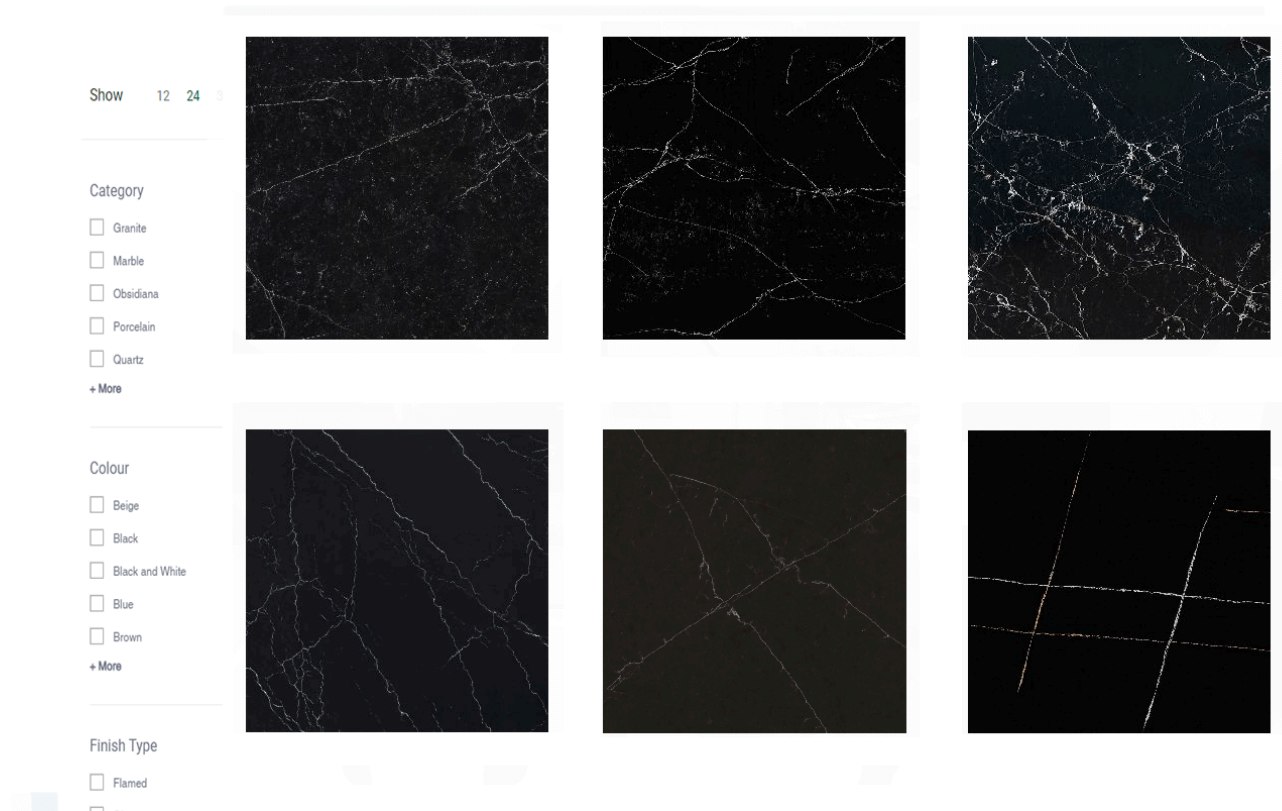

Tough Grime Removal

You can spray the same detergent or vinegar-based product onto your quartz countertop.

Making Quartz Counters Shine on a Monthly Basis

Even though the polish of countertops does not wear away, it can appear dull at times. The cause is caused by small dust particles that fall to the ground. But, once again, this is a fast repair.
