

Fibroid Ablation vs. UFE: What's the Difference?

Struggling with fibroids? Fibroid ablation is a minimally invasive procedure that uses heat to shrink fibroids and reduce symptoms like heavy bleeding and pelvic pain. While it may provide relief for some women, it does not completely remove fibroids and may not be the best option for those looking for long-term results.

At USA Fibroid Centers, we offer Uterine Fibroid Embolization (UFE)—a non-surgical treatment that targets fibroids at the source, providing lasting relief without affecting the uterus. Unlike fibroid ablation, UFE effectively treats multiple fibroids, ensuring a better outcome for women seeking a safe and proven solution.
